COVID-19 Overview

At Shaw, we have a steadfast focus on the health and safety of our people. As we all continue to experience unprecedented circumstances that are impacting every aspect of our daily lives, we are committed to supporting our associates and their families, our customers and our communities.

By working together to ensure our response policies and protocols are followed, we can help control the spread of the virus and keep our associates and their families safe and financially whole at the same time.

To date, we are aware of nearly 4,050 of Shaw’s 20,000-plus associates having tested positive for COVID-19. Approximately 3,973 of those have fully recovered already and have returned to work.

To protect our associates and their families, our customers and our communities, we have developed comprehensive, COVID-19 emergency response policies and procedures, and we’ve given associates new choices to make the best work decisions for them and their families.

Summary of The Steps We’ve Taken (as of June 18, 2021):
The below adjustments to policies have been made to help relieve the stress and concerns of our associates regardless of their position or geographic location. Our efforts include but are not limited to:
- We’ve implemented frequent, enhanced, extensive cleaning methods and social distancing practices at each of our facilities and are encouraging associates to check their temperature before coming to work.
- Effective May 17, masks are no longer required at Shaw facilities, except where required by federal, state or local laws. Associates may choose to continue wearing masks.
  - This decision is based on new CDC guidance that states fully vaccinated individuals can safely resume day-to-day activities without wearing masks. According to the CDC guidance, individuals who have not been fully vaccinated should continue wearing a mask.
- Shaw will continue monitoring and assessing COVID-19 risk factors and may require all associates to wear masks or maintain social distance again in the future, if necessary, to ensure the health of our people and our business.

- We have limited in-person meetings and are avoiding plant-to-plant travel.
Like the rest of the world, we are spending a lot of time in Google Hangouts, video conferencing and on conference calls to minimize contact and avoid travel.

Our associates are implementing social distancing, which include rotating work days, staggering work and break times, and other measures.

- Shaw has waived out-of-pocket costs and the deductible for COVID-19 testing for Medical Plan members. The Plan will pay 100% of cost as if it were a preventive service.
- Shaw’s Employee Assistance Program is available at no cost to associates and their households.
  - We have reminded associates of the availability of these services if they need resources during a quarantine or would like to speak to a counselor during this stressful time.
- Shaw offered incentives, such as added paid time off, to hourly operations associates in April in appreciation of the important role they play in meeting critical shelter and infrastructure needs.
- Shaw temporarily suspended its hourly associate attendance policy in late March through mid-May to provide associates greater flexibility and choices regarding whether to come to work without worrying about their employment status. Shaw continues to provide provisions to address COVID-19 related absences to support associates through their individual situations.
- We’ve provided frequent updates regarding our policies and procedures and reminded our associates of health and safety guidelines to follow at work and in their personal lives to maintain their health and safety.

We have an internal team monitoring the ever-evolving COVID-19 dynamics, and will continue to adjust our response as circumstances warrant to help provide the support that is best for our associates and their families, our customers and our communities.

Status of Operations (as of June 18, 2021):
Amidst unprecedented disruption in our lives and uncertainty in our businesses, we are grateful that we are seeing the flooring market gain strength. We are proud of the way our customers have rallied their teams to take care of consumers in a safe and effective manner.
Due to supply chain impacts that many customers are facing as well as other dynamics as we all navigate the impacts of the pandemic, there have been some delays with delivery of both soft and hard surface products. Any impact to customers will be communicated by the local sales team and through our brand channels. Shaw maintains large inventories across its broad portfolio of products. As always, service teams will work closely with customers to find alternative products if needed, move around inventory and service customers’ most critical needs.

State and Local Disaster Purchasing
Underscoring the essential nature of our products during this critical time, Shaw's commercial flooring products are available to state and local agencies via the GSA's Disaster Purchasing Program. This program provides an avenue for state and local entities in need of flooring products and services in response to COVID-19 to do so more effectively and cost efficiently. One example would include flooring for temporary medical facilities. Non-COVID-19 associated projects will continue to leverage their standard purchasing methods. Additional information regarding this program can be found on the GSA website.

Making a Positive Impact

Amid these trying times, our teams have worked diligently to make and deliver flooring products for critical shelter and infrastructure needs including meeting tight deadlines for flooring needed for temporary medical facilities in Reno and New York.

In addition to continuing to support our customers, Shaw has swiftly adjusted our philanthropic efforts to ensure we are meeting current community needs -- including continuously exploring how we can apply our skills and physical assets for new purposes.

Based upon local community need, we have, so far:

- Provided 3-D printed face shields for healthcare providers in northwest Georgia, Rochester, New York, USA; and São Paulo, Brazil
- Donated N95 masks to a local medical professionals
- Connected medical facilities with Shaw suppliers for more rapid access to needed supplies (such as masks) to allow them to tap into a different supply chain than normal where their typical supplies are strained to meet growing needs
- Made our own hand sanitizer and disinfectant for use in our north Georgia facilities -- relieving some pressure in the supply chain for others seeking similar materials
- Donated Chromebook tablets to local school systems to provide remote sessions for speech and occupational therapy for students in need of devices
- Sewed cloth face masks for the community
- Delivered personal protective equipment (PPE) and other safety supplies recommended by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and the World Health Organization (WHO) for students’ safe return to the classroom in August
- Rolled out the red carpet (literally) for healthcare workers, helping local communities celebrate the healthcare heroes on the frontlines
- Supported local farmers whose businesses have been impacted by restaurant closures through the Georgia Grown To Go program, while simultaneously offering Shaw associates fresh fruits and vegetables at a discounted rate
- Provided meals from local restaurants for healthcare workers in area hospitals
- Supported associates who are volunteering their time in support of various COVID-19 response efforts
- Partnered with the United Way, an organization with whom Shaw has worked for decades to help meet the needs of the communities in which we operate
